Community Relationships

Unlike typical Council Liaison assignments where the councilor is expected to regularly attend committee or commission meetings, the Community Liaison is expected to open a line of communication with the leadership of the organization and check in quarterly to understand how things might be changing for that organization, learn about new activities, and discuss any challenges. The purpose of this structure is to help the City Council as a body understand the current reality of the City's primary community partners as we, and they, navigate this time of great change. As Community Liaisons, Ashland City Council members will share similar information with those community organizations at their request.
